Wolverines No Match for Easterners in Any Department of Football.

TRICK PLAYS WORK FOR HEAVY GAINS

Also Circling Ends and Line Bucking Deliver the Goods at Will.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 14.—Pennsylvania gave Michigan her annual drubbing this afternoon in a game in which the ball was carried by the officials almost as much as by the players. The score was 29 to 0 in favor of Pennsylvania.

About 15,000 persons braved the cold, and enthusiasm was keen. Pennsylvania's speedy backs found it very easy to circle Ends and Linemen, the Michigan ends. Pennsylvania also had better luck with the forward pass, and its backs had far the best of it in gaining ground by straight football. Pennsylvania scored her first touchdown in just twelve minutes. After Draper had carried the ball for a total of sixty yards in two plays. Scariett kicked goal.

Penn Penalized.
During the remainder of the half the Easterners were several times within striking distance, but each time drew a penalty for holding in the line, being penalized ninety yards in all in the opening session.

Michigan played more of a defensive game, but tried several forward passes. The Wolverines had poor luck with these until near the end of the half, when they got away with two of them, netting forty-two yards. Allardice and Wassmund did the stellar work in this respect. Allardice tried for a field goal from the 40-yard line, but failed.

Pennsylvania started off with a rush in the second half and fairly swept the Wolverines off their feet. A fake kick-off, which was recovered by Scariett, a forward pass, line buck, and end run, scored the first touchdown in just three minutes. Scariett kicked goal. Six minutes more found Pennsylvania with the ball on her own 50-yard line, and on a fake kick formation Manier ran for a touchdown. Scariett again kicking goal.

Michigan Loses Heart.
Michigan seemed to lose heart and her attempts at tackling were feeble. Pennsylvania again fell back to her habit of holding and drew frequent penalties.

Hollenback, who had always been good for a gain, annexed thirty yards after an exchange of punts and a twenty-five-yard run by Miller. Means then plunged through for a fourth touchdown. Scariett failing to kick goal. Hollenback scored the final touchdown after a series of line smashes. Pennsylvania's whole back field started throughout the game, but her line did not prove as formidable as was anticipated. It was skill in the open or new game right when the Wolverines were confident last year that sealed the doom of Michigan.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—"Johnny" Hayes, the Marathon winner, has secured George Cameron, the cycle rider, to help him prepare for the race in which he will meet Dorando at Madison Square Garden on Thanksgiving eve, November 25. The little American distance runner has selected the grounds and gymnasium of the Pastime Athletic Club as his place to train, and is working there daily in addition to the jaunts which he takes over the roads.

The Question of the Hour

Virginia Scores Another Victory Over Old Rival In Driving Snow on Georgetown's Slippery Field

Georgetown's showing in the first half was a distinct surprise to the critics. Most of the play in this period of play was in Virginia territory and on several occasions it looked as if the Orange and Blue would simply have to give in to Coach Newman's men. After battling twenty-seven minutes, Georgetown had the ball on Virginia's 4-yard line, but with three yards to make on the third down, Virginia had been rushed off its feet. Shea, Fitzgerald, and Palen tearing holes through both sides of the line for gains varying from four to eight yards. The left side of the visitors' defense seemed to be the most pregnable. On the last two tries before the ball went over to Virginia under the shadow of the goal posts, Quarterback Stuart sent the Georgetown backs flying at the right side of the Virginia line with the result that the ball went over to Virginia on her own 2-yard line. Bowen was called upon to put his teammates' goal line out of danger and the gritty end ended all chance Georgetown had for a score by sending the soggy ball sailing through the air to midfield. Time was called with the ball in Georgetown's possession at midfield.

There were no outbreaks similar to those of past years during the intermission, no parading around the field, no ear-splitting yells. The spectators, as well as the players, were considerably under the weather.

Change Style of Play.
Playing in the second half was in distinct contrast to the method in the first. Both teams relied on a more open game, on-side kicks and punting being in the forefront. Fitzgerald booted the ball for Georgetown to Stanton, on the kick-off, the former Californian returning the oval ten yards. The ball sear sawed up and down midfield for five minutes, neither team having an advantage. After securing the ball on the Virginia line, Virginia began the march that ended in a touchdown. Fake plays off tackle, and on-side punts, netted the Old Dominion eleven gains of twenty and twenty-five yards. Here the work of Neff, last year's Virginia captain, was the real feature. The Virginia half could not he stopped. Gloth was tearing large holes at center, through which Neff plowed for his gains. Eager was removed, and Beckman substituted. In hopes of stopping the telling work done by the Virginia line on on-side kick and off-side play gave Virginia the ball on Georgetown's 3-yard line on a second down from where Neff shot through left tackle for a touchdown. Yancey's goal brought Virginia's total up to 6.

Georgetown received the next kick-off, but was unable to advance, mainly on account of the slippery field. The backs could not get started, and the elusive ball resulted in frequent fumbles, mostly on Georgetown's part.

Rely on Bowen.
Virginia relied on Bowen's mighty toe to keep it's goal line out of danger. Frequently on a first down the Virginia end rush would be sent back to punt. In this way Georgetown was kept far from its own territory, and then there at last existed the chance of Virginia's sending the ball near the Georgetown line on fumbles. Virginia's main object after making her score was, no doubt, to keep Georgetown in her own territory through punting. Fitzgerald's work along this line was hardly on a par with Bowen's, but it must be said, the Georgetown fullback performed nobly, considering his physical condition.

In the middle of the first half the former crew captain suffered a broken nose and sprained thumb, nevertheless played through the rest of the game, and played in a way that resulted favorably for Georgetown. When time was called after twenty-five minutes' actual play, Georgetown had the ball on its own 45-yard line.

Teams Evenly Matched.
Taking the situation as a whole, the consensus of opinion seemed to be that the two teams were evenly matched. Outside of playing high in the line on the defense, the Georgetown rush men held their heavier opponents to a standstill. In the back field the general play of Virginia was perhaps a little better than that of Georgetown, on account of the speed possessed by Honacker, Stanton, Yancey, and Neff. Gloth, in the line, was a tower of strength.

The tactics were the weak points, and here Georgetown made most of its gains. The fight waged by the respective ends was undoubtedly one of the prettiest ever seen on a local field.

Frequent penalties were inflicted by the officials, mainly as a result of the intensity of the playing indulged in by the players on the extremity of the lines. Holding by Virginia gave Georgetown at least eighty yards during the first half, and on the next play, the Virginia line was again kept back by a fair game for the Orange and Black. This probably resulted from the fact that the players were directed almost entirely by Captain Gloth from center, and in this way Honacker was but a dummy, and the line trusted to him in last season's Georgetown game.

Forced to Retire.
Eager, at center, played a gritty game against the famous Gloth, but was forced to leave after the middle of the second half. Munhall put up a sterling exhibition, the veteran tackle being called back to the line frequently to carry the ball. Dailey, at guard, proved a stone wall to plays sent through his position. The placing of Stuart at the helm proved to be a wise move on Coach Newman's part, for the 1907 sensation ran the team with rare brains, with but few exceptions, and his interference for Palen on receiving Virginia's punts could hardly have been improved. Georgetown's backfield performed as expected, and gave the visitors no end of trouble, especially on plays off tackle.

From here on the game developed into a kicking battle between Fitzgerald and Bowen, the Virginia having a shade the better in the exchanges. The ball swayed up and down in the center of the field and was never brought into dangerous territory by either of the two players. The half closed with the ball in the visitors' possession on Georgetown's 40-yard line.

After two tries through the line was again forced to punt, Palen being downed on the 10-yard line.

A plunge through tackle brought nothing, and Fitzgerald punted, Eager, the Georgetown center getting down the field and recovering the ball, after the Virginia line had been broken up again, punted, and Honacker was downed on his own 10-yard line. Bowen punted out of danger for Virginia, Stuart downed in his tracks. Here what appeared to be a march for a touchdown was started by the local collegians.

Shea ripped off the necessary ten yards through left tackles on two tries. Miller recovered the outside kick and Georgetown held the ball on its opponent's 20-yard line. Stuart fumbled and recovered and Virginia was penalized five yards for offside play. Shea tore around end for four yards and two good gains through the guards by Big Fullback Fitzgerald gave Georgetown the ball on Virginia's 20-yard line.

With that bulldog tenacity for which Virginia is famed the visiting forwards forced the gate and Georgetown was forced to take the defensive within arm's reach of the goal.

Bowen punted out foul and Georgetown again got the ball far down in the Virginia territory, but after a successful forward pass, Honacker received the ball on another try at the

SWEET HARMONY AMONG BOWLERS

Hatchets Buried and Olive Branch Floats at Washington Association.

"POP" MEYERS GETS JOB AS PRESIDENT

Tries to Sidestep, But "The Gang" Won't Hear of It—Eligibility Ruling.

Contrary to the expectations of many, there was no "pow-wow" at the meeting of the Washington Bowling Association last night.

Everyday tag-team bowlers, and brought the olive branches out of storage, and it looks like a big tournament this year on an even keel, with harmony at the helm and everybody pulling in the same direction.

President "Pop" Meyers, just home from ruling the American Bowling Congress officials, including President Garry Hermann, said that Washington was mighty popular with the boys, and they were squeezing to have the 1911 international meet in the Capital City. Pop said it was intimated that the Capital might have had it this year, but he hardly considered the comparative baby in the association as sufficiently grown to pull off successfully the big meet.

The following officers were unanimously elected, although "Pop" tried to sidestep the presidency.

Edward Meyers, president; W. W. Chase, vice president; George S. Livingston, second vice president; C. E. Brown, treasurer, and L. J. Ward, secretary.

There were many suggestions and much discussion as to the eligibility of teams, and it was decided to have the executive committee pass upon all applicants with full power to accept or reject. In addition to the regular officers of the league, this committee will be composed of the following who were elected after several ballots:

T. G. Helmerichs, Bureau; J. H. Williams, Government Printing Office; C. B. Hunt, Pioneers; George C. Shaffer, Florists.

The city tournament will be on the boards the latter part of January.

FITZ HERBERT LANDS OAKLAND HANDICAP

Does Six and One-Half Furlongs in 1:18—Ellison Entry Left at Post.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Fitzherbert won the Oakland Handicap at Emeryville today for Sam Hildreth, and won it rather easily from the 40-100 shot, Jeanne D'Arc, and Native Son.

The feature of the race was the disappointing race of the Ellison entry, Royal Tourist and Don Enrique, ruling favorites in the betting. They were practically left. Hildreth's pair, coupled with Smiley Corbett, ruled second choice.

Fitzherbert was off first to a good start, and after laying second to Smiley Corbett to the stretch, scored in handy fashion from the fast coming Jeanne D'Arc. The race was run in record-breaking time, the timers hanging up 1:18 for the six and a half furlongs. An immense crowd was on hand to witness the handicap.

In the second race Bellwether, the crack sprinter from President Williams' stable, easily downed the speedy Anna May, first choice.

CARLISLE BARELY BEATS PITTSBURG

Gets But One Touchdown, and That in Second Half.

PECULIAR RULING ANGERS INDIANS

Houser Forced to Return Ball He Fretfully Kicked Off the Field.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 14.—The Carlisle Indian team had some trouble beating the University of Pittsburg here this afternoon, the final score being 6 to 0.

It was one of the worst football days in the history of the game, being played in the teeth of a fearful blizzard with an inch of snow on the ground and flags being used to mark line. Pittsburg was much stronger than the Carlisle people had been led to expect and the Indians were held for no score in the first half. In the second half the Indians played desperately. They got the ball on an on-side kick early in the play and Carlisle's O. H. Hendricks for a touchdown. Thorpe kicked goal. This was the only score made.

There was almost a riot in the part of the Indians when during an argument with officials, Houser, of the Indians, in anger kicked the ball to the further end of the field. The officials announced they would rule out any player of either side save Houser if they touched the ball, until Houser personally returned it. The big fullback was compelled to walk the full length of the field and carry the ball back.

GREAT ENGLISHMAN WILL RIDE HERE

The most remarkable follower of motor pace in the world has been engaged to come to this country to ride during the international six-day bicycle meet at Madison Square Garden, New York, December 6 to 12. Arthur E. Willis, of Putney, England, is the young man in question, and his claim to fame is founded upon a cycle record which he recently hung up in Germany, riding 61 miles 95 yards in sixty minutes. This is the first time that a mile a minute has ever been ridden for a full hour. Willis is a little chap, only weighing 135 pounds, and standing four feet eleven inches. The record was made behind motor equipped with a wind shield on August 15 this year, at Miltberthofen track, at Munich, Germany.

CHECKER CHAMPION.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 14.—Charles Francis Barker, of Boston, is still champion checker player of America. J. A. Drouillard, of Kansas City, the only serious contender for the championship title, last night admitted himself hopeless for the title. He resigned the match and the $2,000 purse. The final score was ten games to two in the champion's favor, with thirty-one games drawn. The match was to go to fifty games, but after the fifth game of yesterday's play had resulted in a draw, Drouillard gave up.
